

A few weeks into his return to the club, Dave McMillan told Ryan Bailey how its all going

A year and a half after leaving the club, fans favourite David McMillan has returned to Belfield and made an instant impact as he aims to recreate the success he experienced during his first spell with The Students.

The 23-year-old won two Collingwood Cups, two League of Ireland "A" Championships and a First Division title during his three years at UCD and inevitably the Templeogue native looks back on his first spell at the club with fond memories.

"I had an incredible few years with the club as we won numerous trophies. Beyond the success on the pitch though, there is a great group of staff and players here that make it a dream for any young player trying to break into the League of Ireland."

McMillan began his footballing career at UCD when he started studying Architecture in the college and as he explained, he had aspirations of competing at the highest level from the outset.
