

Timmy Molloy has taken to the road in aid of Jigsaw - The National Centre for Youth Mental Health after he departed the club after finishing college in May.

It's not your average cycle, as Timmy, along with four of his friends, David McLaughlin, Gearoid Lyons, Richie McManus and Ruairi Hession are all currently cycling across the USA from coast to coast in aid of Jigsaw - The National Centre for Youth Mental Health in Ireland. They were inspired by the work Jigsaw do for young people in Ireland and wanted to support them by raising money through this adventure.

The started their journey from Boston at the start of June and they are now almost a month into the cycle and are over 1,000km into their challenge. They have already passed Chicago and are currently in Iowa.

They have currently raised over €3,000 in aid of Jigsaw and are hoping to raise €5,000 by the time they reach the West coast, after about 5,000km.
